Advisory No: Adv/2020/Feb/001

Cyber Security Advisory: Emotet Weekly Hunt Report

This data is to be considered as TLP:AMBER

Emotet is one of the most widely distributed and actively developed malware families used by cyber criminals. Its operators indiscriminately target individuals, companies, and government entities across the world, stealing financial data and other sensitive information. Emotet began as a banking trojan but now also functions as a dropper for other malware. The additional payloads can be used to achieve more lucrative attacks, and often include threats like additional banking Trojans, information stealers, email harvesters, self-propagation mechanisms, and even ransomware.

Emotet is mostly spread through spam emails that contain embedded malicious URLs or weaponized PDF or Word attachments. Once downloaded, Emotet injects code into processes that are running on the system and connects to a command and control server to upload data and receive instructions for various follow-on activities, including downloading additional modules and malware onto the host. Emotet propagates across a network by brute forcing passwords, sending malspam messages that originate from the infected user's account, and leveraging the EternalBlue exploit to attack unpatched systems.

Cyber Security Advisory: Weekly Mirai Activity Report

This data is to be considered as TLP:GREEN

Our trusted partner reported the following IoC's from statically analyzed Mirai samples identified over a week. There are a couple things to be aware of while looking at this data:

* Network IOCs may be associated with binary distribution or one of the "cnc" or "report" functions.

* Network IOCs are identified from newly identified samples but may themselves not necessarily be new.

* Because of the nature of the static analysis there is MODERATE confidence in the accuracy of the network IOCs

Cyber Security Advisory: Recommendation for safeguarding E-mail Accounts

This data is to be considered as TLP:AMBER

It has been observed that attackers are adopting various social engineering techniques like phishing, watering holing, credential stuffing etc. on E-mail Accounts of various government, public and private sector organizations in order to compromise their system as well as stealing their accounts credentials. In order to minimize leakage of credentials related to e-mail ids, some important recommendations are as follows:-

- a. Employees be made aware about the social engineering techniques like phishing, watering hole, credential stuffing etc.
- b. Employees may also be sanitized to avoid using mail services using public/open Wi-Fi access.
- c. All organizations must ensure implementation of strong password policy which includes periodic mandatory change of password.
- d. The configuration of mail and DNS servers needs to be hardened by enhanced features like one time device registration, geo tagging, multifactor authentication etc.
